Sancerre Le MD, Henri Bourgeois		Bottle	125ml
Loire, France	2015	£97	£18

Vines planted on the slopes of Monts Damnés (which translates to 'damned mountain' due to the incredibly steep gradient) collectively make up the most iconic, sought-after vineyards of Sancerre. The Kimmeridgian marl soil, made up of fossilized sea shells and clay, and the maturity of the Sauvignon Blanc vines make this site unique. The Bourgeois' 10 generations of devotion to tending the vines of Chavignol is evident by the quality shown in their expressive wines. The 2015 is chalky with a touch of gunflint minerality - the palate opens to a broad array of flavours ranging from white flowers to ripe tropical fruit, blackcurrant leaf, vegetal notes and a wonderful clean, lengthy finish.

Clos Floridène Blanc, Denis Dubourdieu		Bottle	125ml
Bordeaux, France (Limited Availability)	2011	-----	£17

The Clos Floridène vineyard, located in the Graves Region of Bordeaux, has been slowly developed since 1982 by Denis and Florence Dubourdieu. The vines are grown on a thin layer of red clay sand above a bedrock of limestone, which ensures a real depth of minerality. The wine is a blend of 55% Sauvignon Blanc, 44% Semillon and 1% Muscadelle, all of which are picked by hand after several passes through the vineyard to ensure optimum ripeness. Fermentation is carried out in French oak barrels, followed by 8 months of aging and regular stirring of the lees. The 2011 is aromatic and complex with flavours of white peach, grapefruit and honeysuckle. The finish is savoury with a hint of spice and baked fruits.

Cervaro Della Sala, Antinori	Bottle	125ml
Umbria, Italy	2015	£27
	£150

With winemaking roots dating back to the 1200's, Piero Antinori is the most famous name in Italian wine and his influence in the last 25 years has been nothing short of revolutionary. Castello Della Sala estate was purchased by the Antinori family in 1940, and they have been making this particular wine from a blend of Chardonnay and the indigenous Italian varietal Grechetto since 1985. The grapes undergo a brief period of skin contact before crushing, and both the primary and malolactic fermentations occur in the barrel. The wine is bottled and aged for several months at the estate before being released. The result is a rich, luscious, and full-bodied style, with intense aromas of citrus, pear and vanilla. The palate has sweet notes of creamy peach, butter, and tropical fruit, with well-balanced acidity and a soft, mineral finish.

Whispering Angel, Caves d'Esclans		Bottle
	125ml
Provence, France	2017	£69 £14

While the fame of this wine grows exponentially, the quality in the glass incredibly continues to march forward. Château d'Esclans is located on elevated ground close to the Mediterranean coast. The original Château - of which now only the cellar structure and foundations remain - dates back to before the 12th century, making it the oldest in the region. This beautifully pale, rose-petal coloured Rosé shows fine flinty/stony notes on the nose with fresh redcurrants, herbs and ripe citrus. It is medium bodied with good length and refreshing acidity, making it exceptional to drink both on its own and as a perfect companion to our seafood.

Willamette Valley Pinot Noir, La Crema		Bottle
	125ml
Oregon, USA	2012	£85 £17

The La Crema winery is dedicated to the production of the Burgundian varietals Chardonnay and Pinot Noir. Established in 1979, the winery is owned and run by two sisters, Laura and Jennifer Jackson, with the help of winemaker Melissa Stackhouse. For this Willamette Valley Pinot Noir, the team chose a blend that they felt best displayed the classic elegance, acidity, earthiness and vibrant fruit of the region, whilst emphasising balance and supple texture. The grapes are all hand sorted and undergo cold soaking to enhance complex aromas before being aged in French oak barrels. The result is a wine with rose petal and pipe tobacco notes, the palate offering smooth cranberry, red cherry and pomegranate.

Arbois Trousseau Cuvée des Géologues, Bruyères, Lucien Aviet	Bottle
	125ml
Jura, France	2016	£103	£20

Wine from the Jura is considered to be one of France's most 'funky' and unusual styles. This "Cuvee des Géologues" (a nod to the geologists who were instrumental in helping Lucien Aviet identify the best sites for his vines in the 1960s) is made from 100% Trousseau. Lucien and his son Vincent are traditional in their methods - the grapes are entirely hand harvested and their bottles always sealed with wax. Cuvee des Géologues comes from half a hectare of 40 year old vines, with spontaneous fermentation in old Alsace foudres, and 18 months of aging. The result is an elegantly structured, peppery red with cherry, cranberry and a pure mineral finish.

Sauternes 1er Grand Cru Classé, Château Rieussec ^(75cl)	100ml	Bottle
Bordeaux, France	2009	£26.00	£183

Château Rieussec was classified 1er Grand Cru in 1855. This is one of the great wines from the estate that is versatile enough to work with many desserts. The 2009 vintage is a blend of 84% Semillon, 12% Sauvignon Blanc and 4% Muscadelle, which were picked over a four week period with many passes through the vineyards, to ensure the optimum ripeness of each individual grape. It has a rich and decadent bouquet of ripe quince and honeysuckle, leading into a multi-layered palette of botrytis-rich fruit, with marmalade, peach and beeswax balanced by a wonderfully refreshing acidity.

FORTIFIED WINE

FEATURED WINE BY CORAVIN

Rivesaltes Ambré, Domaine Cazes  V		100ml	Bottle
Roussillon, France <small>(37.5cl)</small>	2003	£16.00	£55

The domaine was established in 1895 by Michel Cazes, the wines are now made by the fourth generation of wine makers, headed up by Emmanuel Cazes. The vineyards have been farmed both organically and biodynamically since 1997. Situated in a natural amphitheatre, between the Pyrenees and the Mediterranean creating the ideal microclimate in the vineyard to produce sweet fortified wines. Fermentation of this wine is halted by adding a neutral grape spirit, leaving a naturally sweet wine of 17.5% Abv. The wine underwent 11 years of aging in oak casks which causes the wine to gently oxidise. The result is deep amber in colour, hence the name Ambré, with aromas of dried fruits and candied citrus peel. It is rich and unctuous on the palate with a lovely balance of acidity, which prevents it from being cloying, dark and nutty with great intensity and a clean mineral finish.
